My summary – The Kourte Project

For this last semester, we have a project to do. My project is called "Kourte" and the objective of this project is to develop a smartphone application allowing the user to obtain a precise and sensitive route of his path. Each route must contain several pieces of information : time, date ...

These plots will allow the user to visualize all movements of his path. It's useful for companies to allow you to choose a gentle route for fragile goods. For fragile people to allow them to choose an optimal route that would adapt to their disability and finally, for children to visualize movements of their paths in a playful way.

I had several roles in this project. First of all, I mainly took care of the various documents to be submitted in the first weeks such as : the specifications, the recipe book ...

Then, from week 5, we started the development phase trying to follow a schedule with different tasks to be done. I first trained on Android Studio. I worked on the production of the main menu, sensor detection, pop-ups creation, as well as the creation of the sensitive plot according to the movement of the phone. The development phase stops in week 9. I also had the role of project manager.

Finally, the next objectives are the finalization of the project with the integration part to have a functional code and application and the rendering of the last documents, namely : the user and installation manual, the test plan ...
